PRESIDENT'S AWARD FOR DISTINGUISHED
FEDERAL CIVILIAN SERVICE
AWARDED TO MR. E. HENRY KNOCHE

1. On 12 January 1977, the Acting Director of Central Intelligence, Mr. E. Henry Knoche, was honored as a recipient of the President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service. Presentation of the award was made in the East Room of the White House by Vice President Rockefeller.

2. The President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service is the highest honor designed for extraordinary achievement in the Federal career service and recipients are selected by a Distinguished Civilian Service Awards Board from nominees submitted by the heads of the various agencies and departments of the Federal Government. Mr. Knoche and five other distinguished civil officials were selected for this honor from over 40 nominees. The following citation accompanied Mr. Knoche's award:

E. HENRY KNOCHE

A distinguished foreign intelligence professional and manager, his leadership, innovative resource management, and commitment to the higher principles of Government service have resulted in success for the intelligence program of the United States in the most trying of times.

His insight, integrity, and devotion to duty have consistently improved the foreign intelligence product so vital to the Nation's security and have contributed significantly to establishing a better understanding of the role of intelligence in formulating foreign policy.

3. Twice before employees of the Central Intelligence Agency have received the President's Award for Distinguished Federal Civilian Service. They were Mr. Lyman Kirkpatrick, Jr., in 1964 and Mr. Sherman Kent, in 1967. The Award was last presented in 1971. The selection of Mr. Knoche as a recipient of the award after one of the most trying periods in the Agency's history is recognition of the Agency's great work and all the employees who serve it so well.

4. Members of the selection panel have told Mr. Knoche the award was his for effective work as DDCI and also for recognition of those at CIA whose dedication and professionalism have kept American intelligence alert and productive.
